

Hey Parents.....

Who's talking to your kids about

{ IS IT YOU? MAYBE IT SHOULD BE! }

Research shows:

- Parents are the most influential factor in young people's decisions regarding sex.
- Parents influence young people's decisions about sex more than friends, teachers, religious leaders or the media.
- 77% of parents think young people should receive most of their information regarding sex and/or sexuality from their parents;
- Parents whose kids discuss with them sexual behavior standards are more likely to be abstinent.
- A child's connection with their parents is the most important factor contributing to the avoidance of risky behavior.
- Parents that have a strong sense of "connectedness" tend to have children with better grades and higher levels of education and experience better emotional health.

See what a difference you make to your child.

Family Honor Parent-Child Programs:

Parents are the most influential factor in young people's decisions regarding sex. Parents influence young people's decisions about sex more than friends, teachers, religious leaders or the media. 77% of parents think young people should receive most of their information regarding sex and/or sexuality from their parents; Parents whose kids discuss with them sexual behavior standards are more likely to be abstinent. A child's connection with their parents is the most important factor contributing to the avoidance of risky behavior. Parents that have a strong sense of "connectedness" tend to have children with better grades and higher levels of education and experience better emotional health.

Parents, take time now to connect with your child.

Program: _____

Location: _____

Date(s): _____

Time(s): _____

www.FamilyHonor.org